REAL ESTATE DOMINO FALLS

Huge commercial real estate broker files for bankruptcy protection; may signal start of sector collapse

Atsunami wave of home foreclosures has been pounding residential markets since the U.S. economy collapsed in the summer of 2008. So far, the commercial sector has remained largely unaffected. However, a recent bankruptcy filing by one of the largest commercial real estate brokers in the country may signal that this is all about to change.

Feds Target 'America's Toughest Sheriff'

JOE ARPAIO

Justice Department intervening on behalf of illegal alien criminals and against Sheriff Joe Arpaio

Sheriff Joe Arpaio is a legend in Arizona. His county, Maricopa, is the home of Phoenix—America's kidnapping capital and the home of a massive number of illegal alien criminals. But when Arpaio effectively began rounding up illegal aliens, and those who harbor them, it was the good sheriff who was being handcuffed.

Billionaire Pal of Madoff Dies Mysterious Death

The headline could have read "Sickly Old Man Drowns in Pool," and no one would have taken note. But when the victim is a billionaire pal of Bernie Madoff, the Wall Street swindler—and not the first billionaire involved in financial subterfuge to die recently under odd circumstances—we begin to ask a few questions.
