

9-11 Cop Breaks Silence

Police hero who busted 'dancing Israelis' talks to AFP

By Dave Gahary

The New Jersey police officer responsible for capturing five Israelis who filmed and celebrated while the World Trade Center towers burned has broken his silence, agreeing to a Sept. 16 exclusive interview with AMERICAN FREE PRESS.

As AFP readers are no doubt aware, these are the same Israelis who were working under the direction of Urban Moving Systems, a Mossad front company at the center of Israeli involvement in the Sept. 11 attacks.

Sgt. Scott DeCarlo has never spoken to the media about the details of that day except for two 30-second cameo appearances in Internet videos from undetermined sources. In fact, DeCarlo confirmed that this is the first, and last, interview he will ever grant in regard to this subject.

DeCarlo revealed to AFP hidden details about the events of 9-11 that mainstream media venues should have uncovered 10 years ago, if not for their near-total blackout of meaningful coverage where Israel is concerned.

Although not scheduled to work that day, DeCarlo reported anyway and “was posted on the highway” to prevent traffic from entering New York City.

“There was a BOLO, which is a ‘Be On the Look Out’ for a particular van, perhaps loaded with explosives,” explained DeCarlo, “that may have been on its way to destroy the George Washington Bridge.”

DeCarlo explained: “It [the suspicious van] happened to come our way, and I grabbed my sergeant [DeCarlo himself was a patrolman at that time] and said: ‘Hey, man,

“I hope by doing this interview, it will end all the requests. This is the first and last interview I will ever do on this subject,” said Sgt. Scott DeCarlo (pictured above).

that’s our van.’ It wasn’t the exact license plate given reported—it was off by one numeral—but I said: ‘That’s gotta be it; it’s just too close.’”

He continued: “The van was coming off the [N.J.] Turnpike trying to get on Route 3. Traffic was rolling at two miles an hour, so we got in front of the van on foot, weapons drawn, and stopped it.”

All five of the Israeli spies refused to exit their vehicle, so DeCarlo was forced to get physical.

“We asked them to get out of the van, but they didn’t listen,” he said. “So, we . . . put them in handcuffs and did it as quickly as possible.”

AFP asked DeCarlo why he thought the Israelis refused to follow his orders. DeCarlo was unsure, but asked this writer, “You ever have a gun pointed at your head?”

DeCarlo then described what happened after the spies were dragged from their van. “When we removed them, one of the guys that was rather chatty said: ‘We’re not your enemy, we’re your friend. Our enemies are your enemies,’” DeCarlo said. “At that point they said they were from Israel. They kept saying, ‘Hey, we’re on your side.’”

“We brought them over to the New Jersey State Police holding cells in the Meadowlands Stadium, and that’s the last I saw of them,” he said. Shortly after that, the FBI reportedly took over. The five Israelis were held for 10 weeks, but were eventually deported to Israel on charges of immigration violations. Shortly after that, they appeared on an Israeli TV talk show discussing how they were in the U.S. “to document the event.”

Sgt. DeCarlo asked AFP to request interested parties not to contact him. ★

AFP Foresees 3rd Party

Over the past few months, veteran AFP researcher and author Michael Collins Piper has been filing some of the most valuable articles to emerge in some time. The underreported subject Piper has focused on is the possibility—the likelihood—of a Rothschild-backed “centrist” third party candidate in the 2012 presidential election.

With major media backing, the individual selected to fill this role could emerge victorious. But, what if their purpose isn’t to actually win, but rather to sway the outcome in a predetermined direction? Making this situation even more urgent is the fact that less than 10 swing states will decide who occupies the White House in 2012. Staunch partisanship in the other 40 states guarantees they’ll vote either Democratic or Republican.

In this regard, what if former Council on Foreign Relations member and Utah Gov. John Huntsman—currently running under the GOP banner—decides to enter the general election as an independent under the tutelage of Lady Lynn Forester de Rothschild who is quite vocal in her opposition to Barack Obama? Even though Huntsman is garnering little support during a slew of televised debates, if he siphons off a few percentage points in key swing states, it could be enough to tilt the election results.

Obviously, nearly three years into his term, Obama’s initial shine has been substantially tarnished, especially on the domestic front. With the U.S. economy reeling from high unemployment, home foreclosures and sky-high debt, citizens now realize that our president is unequalled and out of his league.

Recently, Mitt Romney quipped that for Obama to know how to create jobs, it would be helpful if he actually had had a job in the private sector. Acting as a “community organizer” in Chicago, then being fast-tracked directly into politics, is hardly sufficient experience to become the chief executive of the United States.

Worse, Obama’s most loyal supporters are wondering whether they had been duped into believing in what now appears to be nothing more than blatant false hope. AFP’s center spread this week provides an especially insightful glance at the disillusionment of today’s youth.

Could a Rothschild-financed third party be the deciding factor in our upcoming presidential election? Keep looking to AFP for Mike’s updates and urge others to spread the word about this emerging “centrist” third party.

UAW, GM Bring Jobs Back to U.S.

The United Auto Workers announced Sept. 21 that it had reached an agreement with General Motors to create 6,400 new American jobs, amounting to a $2.5 billion investment in the United States and a return of production from Mexico to the U.S., reports New-York-based Bloomberg News. These new jobs are very welcome news after many consecutive months of bad news on the U.S. employment front.

NUCLEAR DISASTER

The recent 5.8 earthquake in the mid-Atlantic region has raised concern about the safety of nuclear power plants in the U.S. The nuclear fallout from the earthquake-induced disaster in Japan has experts re-evaluating what would happen here under similar conditions. They believe that a quarter of the nation’s 104 reactors may be unsafe and will need modifications. With natural disasters on the rise, the possibility that a failed reactor could worsen the calamity is real and frightening.

Famed crooner Tony Bennett recently took to the airwaves to blast the U.S. government for starting wars around the world. PRACTICAL POLITICS commission is commendable for revealing the corruption, one has to wonder if they are concealing a much bigger plunder. The Pentagon has publicly admitted that 25 percent of its budget routinely cannot be accounted for. The official budget is $700 billion per year, and one-quarter of that is a whopping $175 billion. And how about Rumsfeld’s now infamous admission on Sept. 10, 2001 that the Pentagon could not account for $2.3 trillion? That amount of dough makes even $60 billion look like small potatoes to anyone with a sense of perspective. What’s going on?

Amidst all of the tourists in downtown Pigeon Forge, Tenn., a serious political seminar for “leadership in practical politics” took place on Sept. 17. The event was attended by such notables as Canadian educator Paul Fromm, Dr. Ed Fields, former Louisiana state Rep. David Duke and radio show host James Edwards. Lawyer Sam Dickson of Atlanta (pictured left) was the keynote speaker and gave an outstanding presentation. The meeting was conducted in a workshop-type format with participation by the 75-plus invited activists and supporters. Tactics were explained and practiced on how to deal with and defeat the liberal alien enemy by throwing their epitaphs of being a racist right back at them. It was an inspirational gathering for many young people and camaraderie for the old warhorses who are still fighting.

The next year the group threatened well-kept government secrets by exposing the criminal antics of the Federal Reserve System, before undergoing a federal attack and an 81-day siege at the Clark Ranch outside of Jordan, Mont. This resulted in the arrest of 22 men and women. Schweitzer was serving the longest sentence of all—20 years. Montana’s conservative Gov. Brian Schweitzer, who has gained national popularity for his stand to protect gun ownership and state’s rights, is the son of one of Schweitzer’s seven brothers.

New Interrogation Techniques Unveiled

By Keith Johnson

Are elite scientists on the precipice of introducing a whole new generation of interrogation and mind-control techniques whereby individuals can be compelled to confess to crimes they did not commit?

According to university researchers in Estonia, the process involves placing a powerful magnet to either side of the brain's prefrontal cortex (PFC). The result is that this can significantly influence whether a person decides to lie or tell the truth in a given situation.

A study published in Behavioral Brain Research by professors Inga Karton and Talis Bachmann documents a recent experiment in which 16 test subjects were shown different colored discs and given the option to either answer truthfully or deceptively to questions about what color they saw. Those who received transcranial magnetic stimulation to the left side of the PFC were found to lie more often, while those who received the identical stimulation to the right side tended to answer more honestly.

As provocative as these findings are, they do not yet establish a foolproof method for extracting the truth from potentially reluctant witnesses or suspects. This initial study only demonstrates that a disproportionate number of test subjects either lied or told the truth depending on which side was stimulated. Otherwise, the results suggest that those intent on misleading their interrogators could still be successful in doing so, while those more susceptible to mind control may be persuaded to make patently false statements that could potentially work against their own best interests.

Past research suggests that stimulating the brain's PFC with magnetic fields may not be any more effective in eliciting confessions than administering the proper amounts of drugs or alcohol.

In 2008, a study funded by the Charleston Alcohol Research Center used rodents to examine the effects of alcohol on the PFC. They determined that certain concentrations of ethanol, usually associated with mild to moderate intoxication, significantly disrupted the activity of an essential neuron receptor that regulates the PFC and prevents it from functioning abnormally.

According to an article in Science Daily, "The prefrontal cortex is a part of the brain that helps us decide whether we should take actions or not," said John J. Woodward, a neurosciences professor in the Center for Drug and Alcohol Programs at the Medical University of South Carolina. "When the PFC is damaged or its activity is decreased, behavior can change dramatically, and people can lose much of their inhibition and ability to weigh the consequences of their actions."

In light of these findings, it could be that the Estonian researchers stumbled on a new way to simulate the intoxicating effects that drugs and alcohol have on the brain rather than finding a key that unlocks the door to the mind's internal defenses.

But that's not to say that the U.S. government will not find ways to exploit this new technology for its own nefarious purposes. In fact, using magnets—as opposed to pharmaceuticals—for interrogation purposes may provide law enforcement with the loophole they need to skirt legal and human rights concerns. ★

Emergency Crisis Survival Tips you should learn before it's too late

How to protect your family, finances and food and survive any economic or natural disaster

Economic collapse, natural disasters, terrorism, power failures, food or water shortages. Nowadays you never know what will happen next. In the event of a sudden crisis, will you and your family have enough money, food, supplies and know-how to survive?

A complete guide for emergency preparedness in today's uncertain times is now available to the general public. It's called The Emergency Crisis Survival Manual and it tells you everything you need to know to keep you, your family and your money safe and protected when a sudden emergency strikes.

The Emergency Crisis Survival Manual tells you exactly which essential survival items you need... and how to get them economically... without breaking the bank. Here's a small sample of the valuable potentially lifesaving information you learn:

- The smartest money moves to prepare for any crisis
- How to affordably stockpile up to 90 days worth of food and supplies
- 35 essential food items to keep in your pantry, closet or basement at all times
- How to protect your investments, coins, precious metals or jewels
- How to protect against home invasion
- How much water to store and the best way to store it
- How to sterilize lake or river water without boiling
- A very effective and little known cooking method if you find yourself without gas, electric or fire

- The 8 dollar survival tool that lasts 10 years and starts a fire without matches or lighter fuel and works wet or dry
- What items and gadgets not to waste your money on
- Which inexpensive items could come in handy for bartering
- 4 survival tools that can get you out of a jam
- What to include in your car or truck emergency kit
- What to do if you are away from home when a crisis strikes
- Be sure to include these vital medical supplies in your first aid kit
- The best firearms for personal and home defense
- The smartest ammunition to buy and how to store it
- The best non-gun self-defense weapons for men, women and seniors
- How to deal with waste and sanitation issues
- 75 items that are the first things to disappear during a crisis... and which of them you absolutely should not be without
- Alternative sources of fuel
- How to stay warm in cold weather
- How to keep your survival stash secure
- The 3 most important things to have with you at all times
- Which dangerous survival mistakes people make without knowing it... and much more

If your life is disrupted by a natural disaster, food or water supply contamination or any other type of crisis, what will you do? Do you have the right supplies and knowledge to take care of yourself and your family? If your power, telephone, water and food supplies are cut off for days or weeks, what will you do?

If availability of groceries or medical services is interrupted, how prepared are you right now to take care of your needs? The Emergency Crisis Survival Manual shows you how to plan, collect and store up to a 90 day supply of all the necessities - food, water, fuel, first-aid supplies, clothing and more - simply and economically. It arms you with the vital knowledge to survive. In these uncertain times, an ounce of prevention is certainly worth a pound of cure.

Right now you can order a special press run of The Emergency Crisis Survival Manual for only $12.95 plus $2.00 shipping. It's a small price for peace of mind and comes with a 90 day money back guarantee. If you are not 100% satisfied, simply return it for a full refund... no questions asked.

Former D.C. Politician Witnessed NATO/Rebel Atrocities in Libya

By Bill White

Former Rep. Walter Fauntroy (D-D.C.), who was trapped inside Libya for weeks while rebel forces—with the help of European troops—invaded the country's capital in late August, has accused NATO soldiers and the rebels NATO supports of war crimes and atrocities against Libyan civilians.

Fauntroy, a former member of the House of Representatives, traveled to Libya on his own initiative to witness the NATO-instigated uprising of militants against the government of Muammar Qaddafi. He was there to broker a peace agreement between warring factions, but he went missing almost a month ago and had been thought killed.

Now Fauntroy has emerged and is claiming he saw French and Danish soldiers committing and directing atrocities by rebels, including mass rapes and the beheading of civilians.

These reports substantiate claims that rebels were engaging in ethnic cleansing and systematically killing anyone they associated with Qaddafi.

REV. WALTER FAUNTROY

Fauntroy's claims are the first reports of soldiers partaking in war crimes. If true, they would be part of a pattern of acts committed by NATO soldiers during African interventions that have included the roasting of Somali prisoners over a fire by Canadian soldiers, not to mention other acts of brutality.

NATO encouraged a group of militants in the eastern Libyan hills to revolt against Qaddafi's government, which is hated by Western powers because of Qaddafi's anti-Zionist stance. NATO has—with the assistance of Barack Obama—provided weapons and air strikes against the Qaddafi government, and recently organized an amphibious assault on the capital of Tripoli, which met with mixed success.

Despite these efforts, the people of Libya have remained largely loyal to Qaddafi, and NATO forces have been unable to consolidate control in any of the major cities outside of their tribal zone. ★

War Criminals Bush and Cheney Should Avoid Traveling Abroad

By Pat Shannan

A series of upcoming speaking engagements by accused war criminals George W. Bush and Dick Cheney is generating waves of protest in Canada. Bush, who canceled a Sept. 20 engagement at Tyndale College in Toronto due to similar pressure, has been invited to speak on Oct. 20 at a gathering in Surrey, British Columbia hosted by Mayor Diane Watts.

But Lawyers Against the War (LAW) founder Gail Davidson says the Canadian government must either bar Bush at the border, because of his alleged involvement in torture and crimes against humanity, or order his arrest when he enters Canada to ensure he is prosecuted and prevent him from returning to his safe haven in the United States.

In a seven-page letter to Canada's Prime Minister Stephen Harper and the Canadian Ministers of Justice, Ms. Davidson cites evidence of complicity in torture from numerous international reports and authorities, including Bush himself.

According to Ms. Davidson, "In his 2010 memoirs, Bush admitted to authorizing the use of interrogation techniques that constitute torture, such as waterboard-ing." This puts the whole national government on legal notice that under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act, Canada has a legal duty to deny safe haven from prosecution to anyone suspected of torture, committed anywhere against any person(s).

Furthermore, Canada has a legal obligation to ensure a suspect is prosecuted, if not in Canada, in a jurisdiction willing and able to do so. This requires the arrest and detention of the suspect to prevent his escaping to a jurisdiction willing to provide safe haven from prosecution.

"Because the U.S. attorney general has declared and demonstrated a refusal to prosecute Bush for torture," Ms. Davidson said. "Canada's initial duty would be first to prevent him returning to safe haven in the U.S. and then to ensure his prosecution, either here or elsewhere."

Bush canceled a speech in Switzerland in February, and another speech last November when London's Mayor Boris Johnson stated that, as an accused war criminal, he should not come to England or any other European nation. Johnson warned, "You may never see Texas again." ★

Germany Works to Erase Memory of Peacemaker

By the American Free Press Staff

In late July 2011, the body of Rudolf Hess, the deputy fuhrer to Adolf Hitler who was murdered in prison in 1987, was unceremoniously disinterred from its resting place in Wunsiedel, a small town in Bavaria. At the behest of Hans-Jürgen Buchta, dean of the Lutheran church there, Hess's body was dug up in the dark of early morning and cremated, and the ashes were taken to a secret location for later dispersal over the ocean. The gravestone was also removed and destroyed.

Hess is renowned for his daring efforts in 1941 to bring an end to World War II through what he called his "flight for peace" by airplane to the United Kingdom. This act of pacifism was repaid by the Allies with life imprisonment and an additional four years of unnecessary, worldwide bloodshed.

Hess's death was officially termed a "suicide by hanging"—an act physically impossible for the 93-year-old man. His Tunisian caretaker, nurse Abdallah Melaouhi, testified that his patient was murdered on Aug. 17, 1987, and that he even looked the murderers in the eye. The coroner, Prof. Wolfgang Spann, stated that the marks of strangulation on the neck indicated death ensued at the hands of another person.*

After the murder, Hess's remains were buried at the Lutheran Church of St. Veit in Wunsiedel. The grave was soon a place of pilgrimage and annual demonstrations by his admirers. Christian Bärthel, a Lutheran evangelist from Thuringia, was told by a resident that the Wunsiedelers were not disturbed by those commemorating Hess. Rather, it was the counterdemonstrators who upset the locals by acting destructively, like "wild animals."

When the disinterment was announced, Bärthel declared that he would hold a religious memorial service on Aug. 13, but the city forbade it. On the day appointed, Bärthel arrived. After police detainment for an hour, he attempted to set up a table and distribute Christian literature. He was surrounded by uniformed police and was given written notice that the city of Wunsiedel had banned him from the area. Bärthel and many passers-by protested, to no avail. After about 30 minutes, the preacher was obliged to leave, being threatened with force by the authorities. The authorities' outrage was not enough. Bärthel returned later, in order to meditate alone in the cemetery, and was pursued by four policemen acting for Buchta, who prohibited Bärthel from carrying out even this peaceful activity. ★

Secession a Viable Option for Texas

By Mark Anderson

SAN ANTONIO—Texas Nationalist Movement (TNM) members say that while the legal processes of nullification and constitutional restoration have been carefully considered for redressing their grievances about widespread federal power abuses, they believe that secession from the ailing union—toward a new Texas nation—is the key to restoring Texan freedom.

In this first-ever coverage of a TNM gathering on Sept. 10, AMERICAN FREE PRESS learned that they seek significant headway toward Texas nationhood via education and dedicated activism.

Secession—which has been batted around in varying degrees over the years in states as diverse as Vermont, Alaska, Hawaii and others—is being explored along a different trajectory in a California proposal [see AFP No. 37, Sept. 12, 2011] for 13 or more counties to form a 51st state, to be called South California, but which will remain within the United States.

However, the TNM, citing their state’s almost autonomous electrical grid, and unique history and culture, feels Texas is an ideal candidate for outright nationhood.

Notably, another group—called the Republic of Texas—claims that since Texas was its own nation after the Mexican War, the United States did not have the authority to annex it into the union. TNM member Dave Mundy disagrees, saying that the people of Texas voted for annexation into the U.S. Moreover, while Article 1 of the Texas constitution does establish that “the people are sovereign,” and that they have the right to alter or abolish their state government, neither the Texas nor the U.S. constitutions directly address secession from the union.

The Texas Constitution’s Article 1, section 1, as Mundy noted, says the state’s independence is subject to the U.S. Constitution:

“Texas is a free and independent state, subject only to the Constitution of the United States, and the maintenance of our free institutions and the perpetuity of the union depend upon the preservation of the right of local self-government, unimpaired to all the states.”

Section 2 of Article 1 says, in part:

“All political power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority. . . . The faith of the people of Texas stands pledged to the preservation of a republican form of government, and, subject to this limitation only, they have at all times the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their [state] government in such manner as they may think expedient.”

TNM members told AFP they are mindful of the need to clean up their state government, while working toward independence. A major question they ponder is whether the central government would use force to prevent Texas secession.

The TNM met at the Crockett Hotel, directly behind the Alamo, during the 175th anniversary of the decisive battle there that birthed the independent nation of Texas that lasted nine years, until 1845. TNM speakers said the federal union that Texas eventually joined has become an intolerable tyrant.

“It’s clean . . . it’s peaceful . . . it’s passionate as hell,” TNM meeting moderator Cary Wise, a former police officer, declared about the TNM. He said local and state government officials need to be aware of the TNM’s outlook and should be encouraged to cooperate, he said.

It’s the agents of federal domination and their central-banking supervisors (having trampled states’ rights established in the 10th Amendment to the Constitution) who are the real revolutionaries—the ones who actually divorced the original constitutional order and seceded from the pursuit of liberty for all. “We are the counterrevolutionaries,” Wise stated. “We counter the revolutionaries who see the [federal] state as the supreme being.”

TNM speaker Robert Smith noted that concerned Texas citizens—and those from other states who want to help—need to consider what kind of future awaits them under the current United States union, with its endless wars, mountainous debt, record joblessness and other extreme ills. “Let’s get Texas independent and show the rest of the nation what liberty is—what limited government is,” Smith said.

Restoration, Smith argued, involves the laborious task of rebuilding and reviving damaged freedoms. And nullification, he continued, also would be tedious, since countless disagreeable federal laws, executive orders and court rulings would have to be challenged. “We could not even get it done with the TSA bill,” he remarked, pointing out that the recent Texas bill to forbid Transportation Security Administration personnel from groping airline passengers boarding flights in Texas was knocked down by the U.S. Department of Justice—and Texas regrettably backed down.

Interestingly, a former Soviet citizen, Sergei Smet, attended the gathering, saying that when he first heard President Barack Obama speak, he felt like he was back in the old Soviet Union. Now a Texas resident and TNM member, he said, “He [Obama] was chosen carefully for this office—like Bush, like Clinton, like everybody else.” As he sees it, martial law is just around the corner, and social unrest will be exploited to justify a crackdown on the populace. So it’s time to act, he said. ★

CANCER ANSWER?

Invented by Engineer John Ellis, High Solubility Water™ produces GREAT blood flow and HIGH BLOOD OXYGEN THAT "CURES ANYTHING" (WASHINGTON POST as far back as 1/27/92)! As a result, it is now available in cosmetics and bottled water, while the savings in laundry detergents (which are destroying our water supplies) pays for the machine!! Customers have told us for years that because of the ability to remove contaminants, they were using a cup of high solubility tap water instead of detergents in their laundry! One man couldn't remove an oil stain from his shirt...our water removed it! NEVER drink ordinary distilled water with lower solubility than tap water. (John Ellis has an Engineering Degree that includes Steam Plant Design)

Background: The 80 year old inventor, a Choate School and Lafayette College Engineering graduate, invented a scientific measuring device as a 17 year old (still used worldwide). An Oil Well Engineer, Design Engineer at Douglas Aerospace and Honeywell Engineer, at age 30 he started his own business and invented a switch that operates (on-off) within .0001 of an inch. Honeywell and Military/Industrial users: "He's the only person that knows how to produce it!" In similar fashion, textbook science said "You can't change water properties"...he HAS for the benefit of mankind!

LIKE THE ONCOLOGISTS BELOW, REGULATORS REMEMBER WHAT THEY LEARNED IN MEDICAL SCHOOL FROM TWO TIME NOBEL PRIZE WINNER OTTO WARBURG M.D.: "CANCER CELLS CAN'T SURVIVE IN HIGH BLOOD OXYGEN!" THAT'S THE KEY!! WE DISCOVERED HOW TO GET MORE OXYGEN INTO THE BLOOD STREAM BY INCREASING THE SOLUBILITY OF WATER AND THE RESULTS CAN BE MEASURED NON-INVASIVELY ON THE SKIN! THAT'S WHY REGULATORS WON'T ALLOW "ALTERNATIVE CANCER CURES"! NONE PROVIDE THE REQUIRED HIGH BLOOD OXYGEN LEVEL. In addition, cancer can go into remission spontaneously!

This is how this was discovered: An M.D. that taught at the UCLA Medical School used our water to perform non-invasive tests that we can use because the results are measured on the SKIN (using Doppler Ultrasound) to see which water produced the best Blood Flow to the extremities (Blood is 94% water): "Nothing is even close to your water in getting blood to the extremities!!" This is because our water has higher SOLUBILITY (that a child can measure) than ANY other water!! When you increase the Solubility of water, blood flow increases and your Blood can absorb more oxygen coming into your LUNGS (simply oxygenating water doesn't get oxygen into the blood stream)! Regulators also allowed the product "Put It Where It Hurts" because in similar fashion, the results can be measured non-invasively on the SKIN!

I am an 80 year old Engineer and Inventor. When I was in Engineering School text book science said you couldn't increase the Solubility of water (Hydrogen Bond Angle) and some people still believe that. However, The Washington Times with a 600 million investment in Washington, DC has been a major influence and the Advertising Manager called me years ago to say they had at least 50 phone calls ranging from the Los Alamos Nuclear Lab to Johns Hopkins Hospital: "They all have your machines!" Los Alamos Scientists: "We were wrong! He is right!"

If you look at our website, the Ad Manager has a contact number to verify all these reports including his own great success story. With a full page ad in The Washington Times every week for 15 years, he knows more about the results better than anyone including reports from the top three Oncologists in the United States!

I understand the information you are providing is for educational purposes only. As stated above, this information is not intended to diagnose, treat, cure or prevent disease. In all health-related situations, qualified healthcare professionals should always be consulted.

Recently, since it's such a touchy subject, I was startled by the cancer comments from a caller so I said: "How would you know that? He said he was an Oncologist at Sloan for 30 years and since he retired without access to our machine, he wanted our E5 Machine!"

He is just one of the retired Oncologists from Sloan that have bought our machines and mentioned that they all knew about Otto Warburg M.D. in Medical School and they wondered how many years it would take for somebody to figure this out! That made me realize that the Regulators obtained the same information in Medical School and that's why they won't allow "alternative cancer cures"! Since the results can be measured non-invasively on the skin, it has been widely reported in The Washington Post (1/27/92: 10,000 people/day, "Cures Anything") along with a description of our patents that include the method but not the proprietary information required to break down the bonds in water and increase the Solubility.

Investigative reporter Pat Shannan wrote about Otto Warburg M.D. and our machines in the American Free Press. LEARN MORE...it could save your life! ORDER BOTTLED WATER OR BETTER YET BUY OUR HOME MACHINE! 1-800-433-9553 Try our anti-aging skin cream that contains our water for ULTIMATE ABSORPTION AND HYDRATION!! Ordinary anti-aging skin creams can't compare because they use ordinary (low Solubility) water!!

U.S. Leaders Preparing to Sign Another Free Trade Agreement

By Richard Walker

In November 2011, a massive free trade agreement—the Trans-Pacific Partnership Free Trade Agreement, known as NAFTA of the Asia-Pacific region—will put another nail in the coffin of America’s economy and workforce. The striking thing about this agreement, which will be signed with eight Asia and Pacific nations, is that it has elicited no outrage from Congress, even as the U.S. economy is in free-fall mode.

It is not as if Congress, or for that matter President Barack Obama, is ignorant of the price paid by American workers since NAFTA was put in place by George H.W. Bush in 1992 and ratified a year later by Bill Clinton with the backing of an equal number of Republicans and Democrats in Congress.

NAFTA, which stands for North American Free Trade Agreement, bonded the United States, Canada and Mexico in an economic pact which everyone was told would lead to cheaper goods and more jobs.

This lie has been repeated with every subsequent free trade deal. The reality is, however, those deals have stripped American manufacturing to its bare bones, hitting the middle class particularly hard. The agreement, which came into force in 1994, was promoted through the World Trade Organization and resulted in the loss of almost 1 million American manufacturing jobs to Mexico.

BARACK OBAMA

JOHN BOEHNER

Political rivals agree on free trade.

What Americans came to find out was that free trade agreements actually allow American corporations to ship jobs to countries that pay workers a pittance and produce cheap goods that flood back into the United States. They pit skilled American workers against those in countries with the lowest possible wages. It is an unfair match, and American workers lose every time, while corporate pirates profit big time.

China is a case in point. Since it joined the World Trade Organization, several million American jobs have been lost, and the U.S. trade deficit with China has rocketed into hundreds of billions. With this money, China has bought American land and assets.

A striking irony of Obama’s so-called economic strategy is that, while he has been talking about a jobs bill, he has also been finalizing plans to sign this latest Pacific NAFTA with countries that include Vietnam, Australia, Malaysia and Singapore. One of its aims is to bring trade tariffs down to zero percent in three years. On his bus trips across America, Obama refused to recognize that free trade has devastated U.S. manufacturing. Now only 9 percent of American jobs are in manufacturing.

Can Obama really be unaware that many of the countries we signed agreements with have been secretly subsidizing their industries? Does he not know that when he bought his last iPad, it was manufactured in China, where Apple employs 10 times more people than it does in the United States?

The love affair Congress and big corporations have with shipping jobs overseas resulted in more than just the massive loss of manufacturing jobs. High technology and engineering companies are also moving abroad.

So, when free trade proponents like Obama and House Speaker Rep. John Boehner (R-Ohio) tell us we, as consumers, get cheap products through NAFTA-type deals, they deliberately fail to mention how those same deals are destroying job opportunities for present and future American generations.

If the free trade jobs exodus is not stopped, there will be no source of knowledge in the U.S. industrial sector, and no way for U.S. workers to earn a living wage in the future. ★

Issa Says He Will Investigate Obama’s ‘Green’ Deal

By Frank Whalen

Rep. Darrell Issa, (R-Calif.), chairman of the House Oversight Committee, has announced he will launch hearings into the government loans program that benefited an emerging “green” company and some of President Barack Obama’s cronies. The deal with Solyndra, a solar cell manufacturer, has cost taxpayers up to half a billion dollars, according to Rep. Mike Pompeo (R-Kan.).

According to observers, the administration was driven mad by its “green” obsessions. With Solyndra now filing bankruptcy, the company has gone from the poster child of Obama’s green future to a cautionary tale about cronyism, political influence and taxpayer exploitation. [See AFP issue #31, Aug. 1, 2011, page 13 for more.—Ed.]

As part of its stimulus plan to create jobs, the Obama administration sought to win support from its Democratic base by showcasing its commitment to environmentally friendly technologies. Choosing Solyndra to be that success story, the Department of Energy approved a $535 million loan for the company in 2009.

The Republican handout, Human Events, reported that the loan approval process was fast-tracked, citing an email to Vice President Joe Biden from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) that stated White House officials had “a situation of having to do rushed approvals on a couple of occasions. We would prefer to have sufficient time to do our due-diligence reviews and have the approval set the date for the announcement rather than the other way around.”

Rep. Cliff Stearns (R-Fla.) said, “The White House had scheduled Vice President Biden’s and Secretary

Chu’s appearances at a Solyndra groundbreaking event prior to the Department of Energy even making its final presentation to OMB on the terms of the Solyndra deal.”

Business Insider stated that auditors PricewaterhouseCoopers revealed that the company’s finances “raise substantial doubt about its ability to continue. . . . Two months later the company was [still] awarded the loan under a green jobs program.”

Members of the Obama administration were fully aware of Solyndra’s impending failure, evidenced by a March 10, 2009, OMB email characterizing the loan as “not ready for prime time.” Then, after Solyndra declared bankruptcy, a new restructured deal guaranteed that friends of the administration would benefit.

Reporter Michael Grunwald wrote on Sept. 3, “Taxpayers probably won’t even be the first creditors to get paid after Solyndra files for bankruptcy next week. The first $75 million will go to two Solyndra investors who poured in extra cash when the company nearly went bust in January.”

One of those investors is George Kaiser, who was a well-known fundraiser for Obama’s 2008 campaign. Kaiser also is Solyndra’s largest shareholder. ★

You Can Help Stop Free Trade Treaties

By James P. Tucker Jr.

President Barack Obama and the Republican-led Congress plan to sneak sovereignty-surrendering trade treaties past the American people, and the Bilderberg-controlled newspapers and broadcasters will again try to keep Americans ignorant of the scheme.

The problem is, if ignorance and complacency prevail, America will become a mere geographical reference when the Western Hemisphere becomes a "union" patterned after the European Union.

It is critical that each of us talk to our friends and neighbors and make them aware of this crisis. Give copies of AFP or machine copies of this report to every patriot you can reach. We have to win this battle every year for our sovereignty to survive; Bilderberg has to only win once.

As a candidate, Obama acted critical of these trade deals. As president, he followed Bilderberg's orders and did an about-face on the issue.

As a compromise, Obama and Democrats in general want to pass the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act (TAA) to provide aid and retraining to workers who lose their jobs because the trade laws sent them overseas.

House Speaker John Boehner (R-Ohio.) caved in and said he will bring up a vote on TAA and the trade deals. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (D-Nev.) had also opposed the trade deals because they would ship jobs from his state overseas. But he caved in and agreed with Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) to hold a vote anyway.

Two trade deals are with Panama and Colombia; a third is with South Korea. The deals with Panama and Colombia would be a giant step toward an "American Union." With these two Latin nations in the fold, the next step in the plan is a deal with Mexico, to eliminate the border, and with Canada, to finally create a "North American Union." This would then be expanded to force the entire Western Hemisphere into an "American Union," with a common currency, possibly to be called the "amero."

When the Mexico deal comes up, it will include establishing a transcontinental highway running from Mexico through Texas and potentially through Canada. ★

Since 1975 AFP editor emeritus James P. Tucker Jr. has won widespread recognition for his reports on the intrigues of global power blocs such as the Bilderberg Group. Tucker is the author of Bilderberg Diary. Containing 272 pages, loaded with photos, the book recounts Tucker's experiences over the last quarter century at Bilderberg meetings. $25 from AFP plus $3 S&H inside U.S.

ORIGINAL U.S. GOV'T MORGAN SILVER DOLLARS 3,264 coins between 89-132 years old

They're called Morgans because George T. Morgan designed them and they were first minted in 1878 and they were the undisputed King of the coin market. These giant cartwheels were the "hard money" of the Wild West. In fact, Jesse James robbed trains to get them. Then, millions of them (270,232,722 to be exact) were melted down when the military needed silver during World War I. This increased the value of the surviving silver dollars dramatically. A few years ago, a very rare Morgan sold for over $500,000!

Now, the National Coin Depository has just released 3,264 Morgan Silver Dollars between 89-132 years old. It will offer this limited stockpile to the public immediately at a guaranteed price of $34.95 each, first come, first served. Price is guaranteed for 24 hours (due to market fluctuations) and a strict limit of 250 Morgans per customer is being enforced.

Each purchase comes with a Certificate of Authenticity verifying that it is a genuine U.S. Gov't Morgan Silver Dollar containing .77344 oz. of pure silver. We invite you to compare this price with others or check numismatic publications. Your satisfaction is guaranteed, or return your order within 10 days by insured mail for a full refund (Less S&H).

Throughout American history, people did all most anything to get their hands on Morgan Silver Dollars. J. P. Morgan filled his vaults with them and John Dillinger held up banks for them. Now, you can acquire your own piece of history for just $34.95. We cannot guarantee price of future releases. So don't delay. Avoid disappointment and future regret. ACT NOW!

Please send me the amount indicated below. I have 10 days to inspect my coins, at which time I will receive a full refund if I return them to you by insured mail (Less S&H). My total satisfaction is guaranteed.

Hundreds of young people descended on Wall Street on Sept. 17 in an attempt to shut down the global speculators and international bankers, who have robbed the most productive sectors of the United States of their wealth. Pictured on the left: New York City police came out in force, to protect Wall Street along with its most famous symbol, the Wall Street's charging bull. Pictured right: Demonstrators march along Wall Street.

Wall Street Invaded

By Victor Thorn

Beginning on Sept. 17, three organizations—Adbusters, Occupy Wall Street and U.S. Days of Rage—unleashed a campaign to radically disrupt, for two straight months, the heart of America's financial sector, in New York City. Events are also planned in 10 other cities, including Washington, D.C.

One of these groups, Adbusters (aka Culture Jammers), envisions a scene reminiscent of the recent London riots that devastated England's commercial district. On Aug. 10, Adbusters proclaimed, "Revolution is not a dinner party, nor an essay, nor a painting, nor a piece of embroidery; it cannot be advanced softly, gradually, carefully, considerately, respectfully, politely, plainly and modestly. A revolution is an insurrection."

When it comes to an honest appraisal of the Occupy Wall Street protests, radio talk show host Dave Orts of Push Back Now couldn't have been more forthright about the participants. On Sept. 13 he told this writer: "What most gets under their skin is that other people have more money than they do. Money is a great addiction, and today's youth have a desire to ascend up the financial ladder. They know the money is already there, but it's being held and not released by those on Wall Street."

Orts provided a fitting example. "When a 22-year-old college kid paying taxes on a summer job sees Jeffrey Immelt working on President Obama's Economic Recovery Advisory Board while his company General Electric didn't pay a cent in income taxes last year, they know something's wrong."

Although many Americans don't agree with the Days of Rage tactics, Orts gives them credit for being mobilized. "In order for us to remove a rock from our shoe, we have to take action. The rock doesn't go away on its own." However, he finds a certain amount of amusement in their naïve aspirations. "If anyone thinks they're going to peacefully assemble and take down Wall Street," Orts laughed, "on 9-11 both towers came crashing to the ground, but Wall Street still only remained closed for a few days."

The end result may also be a bit misguided. Orts noted: "The Days of Rage icon used on their posters is a communist model. The name Days of Rage connotes a group of people that are deeply disturbed by a societal evolution that is not fitting to what they want. Yet they view President Obama's political appointees and union leaders feeding off the top tier of government, and they feel betrayed. The promised redistribution of wealth isn't coming their way, so in essence they're saying, 'If you keep screwing around, you won't be around any longer.'"

WHAT THEY WANT

For their part, U.S. Days of Rage organizer Alexa O'Brien and her cohorts have made five demands:

- 1) Money should be removed from "buying politicians" who feed the Wall Street beast.
- 2) The resources of our nation shall no longer be used to coddle and benefit banksters and their minions.
- 3) The U.S. government should diligently rein in the parasitic destruction wreaked by Wall Street.
- 4) Our nation should no longer be held hostage by "too big to fail" banks.
- 5) Solutions should be found that stop the Federal Reserve from stealing our future.

O'Brien summarized their goals. "We have no choice but to focus on the sources of money. Both the Democratic and Republican parties set the bankster agenda because of the money."

BRINGING THE YOUTH

When asked to describe why leftist youths were so frustrated that they'd try to occupy Wall Street, Eric Verlo of Not My Tribe told this writer on Sept. 12: "Barack Obama promised hope and change, but it never happened. Now we're taking real change to the streets to show him how it's done."

He continued: "Our eyes have been opened to the fact that presidents don't have as much power as we thought they did. But compared to George Bush, Obama seems powerless."

When asked about the possibility of violence during their Days of Rage event, Verlo stated matter-of-factly, "It's hard to get people motivated if you say, 'Hey, come out and get beat up or slaughtered.' But when it comes to defending ourselves, if you want to swing back, that's everyone's free choice."

As to the locale of these demonstrations, Verlo put their views into perspective: "The youth organizers are very anti-capitalist, and Obama isn't delivering. Wall Street is where money changes hands, and they shouldn't be so influential. They're the real power center. They're in charge, and we intend to camp out until somebody responds to us."

PUPPETS

According to Greg Eddolls of the Strong Watchman website, Days of Rage organizers are parroting the Mideast's "Arab spring" uprisings, with one exception.

He told this writer on Sept. 13, "Participants from the Largest Protests in Years

By Jeffrey Smith

NEW YORK, New York—In what may be a new type of protest, a large group of demonstrators descended last week on Wall Street to protest the New York financial sector, international bankers and the Federal Reserve's influences on the U.S. economy and on national political life. The protest which sharply departed from traditional political and social movements of the past, is without a central leadership and apparently assembled after an on-line call following an article in a media magazine.

The "Occupy Wall Street" rally, the largest demonstration on the economy in years, brought together a wide range of activists to a park just south of the original WTC 9-11 site. Traditional peace and left-leaning groups found themselves joined by economic conservative elements and a diverse sample of views from across the political spectrum. While originally focused on the U.S. financial condition, the demonstration almost immediately refocused on the activities of international banks, non-governmental organizations and the Federal Reserve. Old left protesters found themselves next to Ron Paul supporters and constitutionalists strongly questioning the activities of the largest banks and their influence on Washington.

Michelle Moore spoke on corporate corruption. The Aaron Burr Society Progressive Libertarians distributed literature for nationalizing the Fed and pointed to major banks usurping the nation's wealth. Well-known attorney Carl Person, who created waves in 2007 attempting to reopen the 9-11 investigation via the New York state ballot, spoke about a program to create jobs by making the first three employees hired by any employer free of regulation, operating as private contractors.

In a surprise move, controversial comedian Roseanne Barr shouted into a microphone for all activists to move away from left-right political labels and constraints. She admonished those listening to "crack the mind control program," a reference to the left-right political system, and "not cling blindly to a single unyielding ideology." ★ younger generation want something, but it's based on ignorance because they don't even know what larger forces they're dealing with."

Specifically, Eddolls explained: "Mantras like 'Government for the People' sound like a noble cause until they start talking about redistribution of wealth. Those with a socialist mindset don't know what comes with it. In an Orwellian scenario, the government provides everything, and in exchange they also control everything."

Associated with this phenomenon, Eddolls sees radical transformations taking place in our nation: "Starting a business or going out and making a living are no longer the dominant theme in America. A new generation that still believes in individualism and hard work is fading, and instead they're more accepting of a collectivist message that's hidden within global government."

The planners behind this Days of Rage event are exploiting this sentiment. Eddolls elaborated: "To destabilize our current government, major civil unrest is needed. A stated aim of the anti-capitalists is to prevent the rich from being rich. So, they want to create panic on Wall Street, resulting in, they hope, massive bank runs. People will then remove all their cash, with the financial strain creating a great deal of turmoil."

When AFP inquired as to whether this scenario is part of a plot to weaken our country, Eddolls answered, "The New World Order is now a conspiracy fact, not a theory, that's been proven right over the past 15 years."

OBAMA'S RADICALS

It should be noted that two of the figures who are helping organize the U.S. Days of Rage are SEIU union leader Stephen Lerner and ACORN founder Wade Rathke. Both have direct ties to Barack Obama.

This connection to the president has deeper roots in a group known as the October 2011 Movement that contains a host of former Students for a Democratic Society members among its ranks. On Oct. 6, a "Seize DC happening" is planned where many of the above-mentioned groups intend to bring about a U.S. version of the Tahrir Square uprising in Egypt.

Of note, the Weather Underground, a violent band of 1960-1970s anarchists, formed as a splinter group from the SDS. The Weathermen were co-founded by none other than Bill Ayers. Not only did Obama launch his 1995 state senatorial career via a luncheon at Bill Ayers's Hyde Park home, it's commonly accepted in many circles that Ayers ghostwrote Obama's "autobiography."

On Aug. 18, investigative reporter Danette Clark described a previous version of this year's Sept. 17 event organized by the Weather Underground in Chicago: "The [Oct. 8] 1969 Days of Rage consisted of violent demonstrations and blowing things up. A commemorative statue of a murdered police officer in Haymarket Square was destroyed by a dynamite bomb. The blast scattered pieces of the statue onto the Kennedy Expressway and shattered nearly 100 windows. Weathermen and fellow demonstrators donning motorcycle and football helmets charged and attacked police officers [while] smashing windows in automobiles, buildings and homes."

Lerner, who serves on SEIU's International Executive Board, was President Obama's guest at the White House on four separate occasions. He is also orchestrating, behind the scenes, the Sept. 17 Occupy Wall Street rally.

Lerner's stated goals are to destroy JPMorgan Chase, collapse the stock market and destabilize the American power structure by rebuilding a new movement. On March 23, Lerner told the Washington Times: "How do we bring down the stock market? How do we bring down their bonuses? How do we interfere with their ability to be rich?"

One of Lerner's fellow organizers, Wade Rathke, founded the disgraced community advocacy group ACORN, while also acting as union president of the New Orleans branch of SEIU. Rathke referred to their coordinated Days of Rage efforts as an "anti-banking jihad."

As a past SDS member affiliated with Ayers, Rathke voiced his disgust with what he called "rats" who notified FBI agents about a left-wing plot to bomb the 2008 Republican National Convention in New Orleans. Coincidentally, Barack Obama began his career as the chief national trainer for Rathke's ACORN.

But the most unapologetically extreme member of Obama's reactionary force is Ayers, who described to Chicago magazine in Aug. 2001 the goal of 1969's Weather Underground Days of Rage: "Kill all the rich people. Break up their cars and apartments. Bring the revolution home. Kill your parents. That's where it's really at."

Later, he wrote joyfully of the widespread destruction: "The streets became sparkling and treacherous with the jagged remains of our rampage."

Ayers's literary flair is obvious, as his talents were later used to pen Obama's autobiography Dreams From My Father. Although mainstream media lapdogs have largely ignored their ties, Obama lives in the same elite Chicago neighborhood as Ayers and served with him on the Woods Fund. Obama later appointed Ayers head of the prestigious Annenberg Challenge.

14 CITIES MOST PRIMED FOR RIOTS

On Aug. 11, Chaz Valenza of Op-Ed News compiled a list of cities that, he felt, were powder kegs ready to erupt (as chronicled earlier this year in AFP, Detroit tops the list, suffering from 40 percent unemployment, a mere $14,000 average yearly income, 36 percent poverty and a 37 percent dropout rate, not to mention the nation's third-highest crime rate): 1) Detroit; 2) Miami Beach; 3) Cleveland; 4) Memphis; 5) New Orleans; 6) Buffalo; 7) Milwaukee; 8) St. Louis; 9) Baltimore; 10) Atlanta; 11) Cincinnati; 12) Long Beach; 13) Newark; 14) Philadelphia. ★

Social Security: Who's Entitled?

By Jim Traficant

Yogi Berra once said: "Here we go, it's déjà vu, all over again." And so it is. Politicians on both sides of the aisle are now saying entitlements are on the table. This is political buzz for Social Security cuts. I don't know about you, but I'm sick and tired of politicians calling Social Security an entitlement. That was my money, paid into it with every paycheck. A real entitlement should be paid for by the government, not paid for by the beneficiaries. I'm not sure if my definition jibes with Webster's, but I don't care.

The trouble with Social Security is that 95 percent of the people waiting for assistance in Social Security offices never paid a dime into the system. If you don't believe my statement, visit your local Social Security office and see for yourself. You'll soon see that Congress has taken care of everybody at the expense of workers who actually invested their hard-earned money into the Social Security program. Trust me, I'm not talking about those kids who grew up getting Social Security because one or both of their parents died, or workers who were seriously disabled on the job and could no longer get a decent job. Those are just the kinds of people who are entitled to a little help.

I am talking about healthy people who have never paid a dime into the system. The money for them comes directly from—you guessed it—the fund someone poured their earnings into over the years.

Yes, Social Security is an entitlement for them. But don't call it an entitlement for the older folks in America who built that trust fund.

In general these days, Social Security is a scam. According to the Ludwig von Mises institute: "Social Security is a 'pay-as-you-go' system. This means that when you work, the government takes your money and gives it to Social Security recipients [whose money Congress has already spent.—JT]. In order to get workers to accept this system, the government promises to take other people's money and give it to you when you retire. Think of it as an exponentially larger version of Bernie Madoff's Ponzi scheme."

I think old Ludwig has it right.

And now for my prediction: America will get a second stimulus. That's Obama's solution to everything. There is no doubt about it. Our government, frankly, doesn't know what to do about our inexorable demise. So, they throw more money at the problem. Our government throws money around like fruit flies on molasses. They don't even know where it's going or how much is being stolen, literally.

But the problem isn't debt. The problem is our system. Our present financial system cannot bring America back. It is too late. It needs to be replaced. It's stimulus time, folks, you can bet on it. Get back at me. ★

Jim Traficant Talks Tough in Cincinnati

By Peter Papahearakles

CINCINNATI—Ex-congressman and current AFP columnist Jim Traficant spoke at a conference in Cincinnati on Sept. 15—an event organized by Jim Condit Jr., who has been a political activist for decades.

Condit is best known for his work exposing vote fraud. He also made a run for Congress in 2010.

Traficant's speech coincided with the release of America's Last Minuteman—a book compiling Jim's speeches made during his 18-year tenure.

An energized crowd listened to Traficant's powerful talk as he boldly listed the problems facing our country, then offered solutions to them. He talked about revitalizing the economy by bringing back our manufacturing base from overseas. Traficant also offered remedies for illegal immigration and our misguided foreign policy, in addition to highlighting the urgency of ending the illegal wars bankrupting us.

Most importantly, Traficant talked about overhauling the financial system. Whereas other politicians pay lip service to auditing the Fed, or even abolishing it, Traficant described how to replace the privately owned Fed with a constitutionally oriented monetary system, abolishing the current socialist income tax.

The reason that the United States, and the whole world for that matter, is going bankrupt, Traficant said, is not because we've mismanaged our finances. It is because the money supply power has been taken over by the privately owned Federal Reserve. This makes us all slaves of the bankers. Unless our government reclaims its constitutional duty to issue debt-free money, we can never get out of this mess.

"Money should be created," said Traficant, "not borrowed." The Constitution has empowered Congress to create interest-free money based on production and the full faith and credit of the citizens of the United States. ★

Interview With Caroline Kennedy Reveals Secrets

By Pat Shannan

On Sept. 13, national news correspondent Diane Sawyer conducted a two-hour interview with Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg, the daughter of John F. Kennedy and Jackie Kennedy. Industry rumor has it that Caroline Kennedy (53) agreed to the release of interview recordings of her mother as a trade-off for keeping the mini-series The Kennedys, which tarnished the family legacy, from airing on television.

In 1964, Jackie recorded seven historic interviews with Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. about her life with JFK that reflected refreshing candor and delightfully entertaining political incorrectness. Jackie died in 1994 and intended for the tapes to remain locked in the Kennedy library vault until 50 years after her death.

CAROLINE KENNEDY

JACKIE KENNEDY

Some secrets kept; some secrets revealed.

On one of the tapes, the first lady reveals herself as a conspiracy theorist by saying only four months after JFK's murder that she believed her husband's assassination was initiated by Vice President Lyndon Johnson and carried out by his Texas oil cronies. She also felt that Lee Harvey Oswald was merely part of a much larger conspiracy.

Jackie was even less fond of Martin Luther King and abhorred his hypocritical pose as a "man of the cloth" while at the same time being notorious for his womanizing. The widowed first lady had soured on King after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told Kennedy that King tried to arrange a sex party while in town for the "march on Washington."

Conspicuously left out of the news presentation for American viewing, but widely reported by the British press, were the retaliatory sideline love affairs Jackie carried on after becoming aware of JFK's unfaithfulness, as well as her alleged four-year affair with brother-in-law Bobby after the president was killed. ★

Nuclear Hazards Understated by Profit-Hungry Nuke Industry

By Frank Whalen

With a recent explosion at the Marcoule nuclear site in France, yet another potential nuclear tragedy is unfolding that could lead to the possibility of a cover-up. Much like the ongoing disaster at Japan's Fukushima nuclear plant, French officials are making the same hollow assurances and hoping that bad publicity doesn't derail future expansion and profit.

Despite not knowing the cause of this explosion, officials quickly announced, "there was no risk of a radioactive leak after the blast," according to BBC News. France, a country that relies on nuclear power for 75 percent of its electricity, has a vested interest in keeping the public passive. Government officials have lied ridiculously in the past, especially concerning the Chernobyl disaster.

Some 25 years after the Chernobyl meltdown in 1986, the French public is still demanding accountability after a government investigation concluded there was no solid proof of intentional deception by officials at the time. The San Francisco Chronicle reported this month: "Researchers and cancer victims accuse the government of intentionally downplaying risks of a radioactive cloud that the accident in then-Soviet Ukraine spewed over much of Europe, in part to protect France's powerful nuclear industry."

The nuclear industry is powerful enough globally that cover-ups appear across national borders, even when health risks are present.

Regarding the Fukushima incident, the UK's Guardian newspaper revealed: "British government officials approached nuclear companies to draw up a coordinated public relations strategy to play down the Fukushima nuclear accident just two days after the earthquake and tsunami in Japan and before the extent of the radiation leak was known." Email exchanges showed, "Officials stressed the importance of preventing the incident from undermining public support for nuclear power."

The Marcoule nuclear site creates mixed oxide fuel (MOX) from weapons-grade nuclear material. According to DC Bureau, the most secretive institution in the federal government, the National Nuclear Security Administration, uses the MOX concept to convince the public that "it will solve the country's energy problems by taking excess warhead material and converting it to reactor fuel for 'peaceful' purposes."

DC Bureau's Joseph Trento reported, "The Clinton, Bush and Obama administrations accepted an unproven idea and committed billions of taxpayers' money to building an enormous plant to take surplus plutonium from weapons and civilian programs from around the world, grind it into a fine powder and turn it into a fuel array for civilian nuclear power reactors. Some experts say this process is more dangerous than stabilizing and burying the excess plutonium."

Making the global connection apparent, Trento went on to say: "The United States, using Areva, a French-government-owned contractor, is building a MOX plant, at a cost of billions of dollars to U.S. taxpayers, that will produce an even deadlier form of Areva-made plutonium-based fuel that was loaded into Fukushima Daiichi reactor No. 3 a year ago. It was among the Tokyo Power Electric Company reactors that melted down in March."

Industry spokesman make hollow assurances and hope that bad publicity doesn't derail future profit

The July 2011 blaze at the Tricastin plant in the Rhône valley of France sent a thick cloud of black smoke into the sky. A strong wind sent it south over a nearby motorway on one of the busiest travel days of the year as the French left for their summer holidays.

The Guardian story reveals that this cover-up was coordinated by the British government "with multinational companies EDF Energy, Areva and Westinghouse trying to ensure the accident did not derail their plans for a new generation of nuclear stations in the UK."

The Washington Post reported, "Even as it struggled to contain the world's worst nuclear disaster in a quarter-century, Tokyo Electric Power Company late last month quietly set out big plans for the future: It proposed building two new nuclear reactors at its radiation-spewing Fukushima Daiichi power plant."

Much like the BP oil spill nightmare here in America, examples of the energy industry suppressing the truth are many. The history of international collusion for revenue-driven deceptions leaves open the question of whether or not to believe that France's Marcoule nuclear site truly poses no radiation threat. Further, this pattern should be duly noted as the nuclear industry juggernaut continues to trade safety protocols and human lives for profit. ★

The Golem: Israel's Nuclear Hell Bomb A World Held Hostage; The Road to Global Armageddon

In this landmark work, veteran author Michael Collins Piper pulls no punches in asserting that Israel's nuclear "Hell Bomb" is pushing civilization toward global Armageddon, that the perpetuation of this un-controlled weapons program has left the world held hostage. Piper explains the danger the planet faces as a direct consequence of American collaboration with a nuclear-armed Israel. Israel has worked relentlessly to construct an atomic arsenal—its Golem—as the foundation of its national security strategy. Outlining the whole shocking story, Piper demonstrates that America's international policy has been hijacked by well-heeled supporters of Israel who—in combination with a mass media dominated by Jewish financial interests—have become the masters of America's destiny and that of mankind itself. The people of the United States and the world must work together to dismantle Israel's Golem before Israel uses its hell-bomb arsenal to initiate Armageddon. Israel Positions Nuclear Subs Off Iran

By Keith Johnson

Israel's submarine fleet is by far the most secretive of its strategic long-range manned arsenals. Unlike the Jewish state's other seafaring crafts, these submersibles never dock in any ports except their own, and their missions are such highly guarded secrets that only a few, even on board, are privy to what their assignment is and where it will next take them.

"Nobody knows where you are except for your crew and your direct commanders," said a former "Lt. Col. Oded" in a recent interview with Israel's Ynet news service. "Even your family doesn't know. They don't know what you're doing or when you'll be back. They know nothing."

Oded says he served 20 years in the Israeli navy and was commander of the Leviathan, one of two state-of-the-art 800-class Dolphin submarines that were donated to Israel by the German government. The Israelis later bought a third Dolphin for $350 million under an agreement in which German taxpayers would absorb 50 percent of the cost.

Though the whereabouts of these mobile doomsday machines are generally kept under wraps, the Israelis occasionally make their presence known. When that happens, the message is clear that they mean business and are prepared to strike at any given moment. That's precisely what happened in July 2009 when Israel sent one of its Dolphins on a high-profile cruise of the Suez Canal. Although the official line out of Israel was that they were merely conducting standard naval drills, it was clear to all that the real purpose of their presence was to flaunt their strategic reach in Iran's face.

In June 2010, all three of Israel's Dolphins arrived off the coast of the vilified Persian nation. The Sunday Times reported, "The submarines of Flotilla 7—Dolphin, Tekuma and Leviathan—[were] sent in response to Israeli fears that ballistic missiles developed by Iran, Syria and Hezbollah, a political and military organization in Lebanon, could hit sites in Israel, including air bases and missile launchers."

The article added, "The deployment is designed to act as a deterrent, gather intelligence and potentially to land Mossad agents."

It's widely believed that these three submarines are often rotated, with only one maintaining a constant vigil in the region for any extended period.

According to a recent UPI article, "Five Dolphins is considered the minimum number required to keep two boats on patrol off Iran at all times."

That's why, to bring the fleet up to their desired quota, two more Dolphins are being constructed for Israel under a deal reached in 2006 whereby the German government agreed to absorb one-third of a total $1.27 billion price tag.

In July 2011, a deal was finalized for a sixth Dolphin submarine that will again be subsidized by Germany under the same arrangement. According to Der Spiegel, the subsidy was being offered to Israel as part of reparations for the "Holocaust." The first of the three is slated for delivery to Israel by 2012.

Unlike Iran, Israel is not a signatory to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and has illicitly pursued a weapons program that, by some estimates, has put more than 600 nuclear-tipped warheads at its disposal. ★

'Food Incorporated' is scrambling our minds...

THE CRAZY MAKERS

How the Food Industry Is Destroying Our Brains and Harming Our Children

An unprecedented look at how American food manufacturers and their products may be endangering our minds. With obesity becoming the fastest-growing worldwide epidemic and manufactured food fueling that trend, The Crazy Makers is timelier than ever. This updated edition includes a new chapter on autism, as well as revised material that shows just how much the industry has changed in a few short years. Based on extensive research, epidemiological evidence and a formal study of kids' eating habits, The Crazy Makers identifies how the latest food products may be literally driving us crazy. Weather War, Epidemics, Mind Control and the Surrender of Sovereignty

Prosecution for Treason

In this daring book, readers will learn about crimes committed by the government that have sabotaged the safety and security of the American people. Were Hurricane Katrina and recent earthquakes the direct result of government technology turned against its citizenry? Are America's children deliberately taught basic fundamentals incorrectly in school in order to dumb down the population? Is the U.S. government practicing mind control on its population? Are epidemics manipulated by the government? Lots more. Documents on how to prosecute treason are outlined throughout, while esoteric and confusing legal terminology is explained for accessibility. Palestine Independence or Israeli Tyranny?

By Ralph Forbes

In 2008 many voters looking for “hope and change” thought Obama could walk on water—but his legacy may well be that he waded knee-deep through rivers of blood. Iraq, Afghanistan, Libya and so on came to pass because American interests were hijacked by Israel-firsters. At first Obama appeared to try to bring some semblance of fairness to the Middle East—which would have resulted in peace and security for Israel and the whole world. This brought the wrath of Zionist fanatics down upon Obama—and he submitted. Feeding Israeli intransigence endangers the whole world, practically guaranteeing war.

With nowhere to turn, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas announced he would seek membership for a state of Palestine from the UN Security Council. True American interests, the saner half of Israelis and 126 countries back the initiative—but the rulers of Israel, the ADL, AIPAC and the neo-cons, who misrule America, defy justice and shriek, “No!”

For more than a half century Israel—backed by the United States and its puppet regimes—could get away with brutal repression, but no more.

Former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates, in a meeting of the National Security Council, described Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu as “ungrateful” and said that, by refusing to acknowledge Israel’s growing isolation, Netanyahu was endangering his country.

Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan said that recognition of a Palestinian state is an obligation, not an option. He told the Arab League that Israel’s behaving like a spoiled child was building a blockade around its own people through its policies. “Israel will break away from solitude only when it acts as a reasonable, responsible, serious and normal state.” He said the Turkish navy will patrol the Mediterranean to prevent Israel from assaulting ships in international waters. “Israel will no longer be able to do what it wants in the Mediterranean, and you’ll be seeing Turkish warships in this sea.”

Turkey, a member of NATO, demanded that Israel formally apologize for last year’s deadly takeover of a Gaza-bound aid convoy, killing nine Turks and a teenaged American citizen.

Thousands of protesters massed in Cairo’s Tahrir Square to demand reforms and an end to military trials of civilians. Then they went after the real masters of Egypt. They stormed the heavily fortified Israeli embassy in Cairo. Israel’s ambassador to Egypt, Yitzhak Levanon, and 80 diplomats fled Egypt, which says it will no longer allow Israel to steal billions of dollars of natural gas in corrupt deals.

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad accused the Zionists of starting both world wars. He also blamed Israel for starting and perpetuating terror, including Sept. 11, 2001.

For America, Israel has been the tail wagging the dog for 70 years.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, former president of the World Jewish Congress, wrote the ruthless persecution of the Palestinians by Zionist zealots was “the original sin.”

When the criminal conspiracy for mass murder and stealing the homes and lands of the Palestinian people was trying to gain “legitimacy,” three secretaries of state—James Byrnes, General George Marshall and Dean Acheson—and Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, who was “suicided” by the Irgun, an Israeli terrorist organization, for his pro-American stance, foresaw America’s recognition of the criminal regime as the great American tragedy.

It is time to address the concern expressed by Forrestal so long ago: “I think it is about time that somebody should give some consideration as to whether we might lose the United States.” ★

Heed My Warning: Attack on Iran a Disaster

By Willis A. Carto

CIA veteran Robert Baer is among those who say we can expect an Israeli-American attack on Iran within weeks. Given the level of control that Israel has on American policy—which is total—this is to be expected because Israel wants nothing more than to destroy Iran.

Which is to say that American strategic leadership is kindergarten level at best. Assuming that the United States does attack Iran, what are we to expect?

First of all, the only attack this country could mount—thanks to the great military brains in Washington, which has American troops currently and needlessly in some 135 countries around the globe—would be aerial and naval.

Meaning that from bases in Iraq, bombers could target Iranian cities—with nuclear bombs probably—and kill hundreds of thousands of Persian men, women and children. This would make the Israeli leaders deliriously happy but would only add to the universal opinion of the world that America is a war-happy, aggressive, genocidal country that does not hesitate to attack any other country, anywhere. To bring “democracy” to the backward natives, of course.

More sophisticated people know that the American economy is literally supported by debt spending by command of the military-industrial-banker-politician complex. Continual war is necessary to keep the unemployed from getting restive and voting out the malefactors of the two corrupt parties.

It should be noted parenthetically that the flood of manufactured goods from China and other countries is the problem, and corporate officers, such as Jeffrey Immelt of GE—who was appointed by President Obama as his chairman of the President’s Council on Jobs and Competitiveness—have created the problem. If America would establish tariffs to protect American workers from imported cheap labor goods, the problem would be solved. Without spending a dime.

But problem solving is not a strong point with American politicians. Far more important to them is the next election, meaning that they are acutely aware of the pressure groups and sources of money in their districts, and the most influential by far is the very active, wealthy, and potent Israeli lobby.

As this is written, September 2011, American warships are in the Persian Gulf, their big guns turned on the country that shares that name, and American bombers are in Iraq within minutes of unloading their hellish cargo on innocents.

NO-WIN WAR

The purpose of this commentary is to make clear that if American leaders submit to the command of Israel and attack Iran, it will result in the greatest disaster for the United States in our history—the biggest no-win war our country has fought, for there is no way we could win no matter how many Persians we may kill by bombing.

To invade Iran is out of the question. Iran, a nation of some 70 million, could quickly field an army of some 7 million. Deploying an American army close enough to invade Iran is out of the question—the logistics of such an attempt make it clear. It would take at least 10 million men—not women or homosexuals—to successfully invade because a defending army has a great moral and tactical advantage over the attackers. The only possible ally the U.S. would have in an invasion would be Israel, and that would be a dubious factor at best. As mentioned, the U.S. would be looked upon with scorn, fear, hatred and derision by every other nation. Russia and China would welcome an American attack on Iran because that would leave them as the lords of the world.

Add all this to the debt load America is already carrying and you can kiss the dollar goodbye as it spirals into hyperinflation.

Iran would be no pushover for America, literally halfway across the globe. Iran has weapons that could make our aggression disastrous. One of these is the high-speed “Hoot” torpedo, which travels over 200 miles per hour and seeks whatever target has been programmed into it. We could end up with the loss of many capital ships and thousands of personnel. The outcome of war is always unpredictable, and strategists who are cocksure of victory often prove to be wrong.

The ship of state is careening toward a date with disaster. Will our leaders wake up in time and correct the course before it is too late? ★

Iranian Nuclear Power and the Art of War

By Vince Ryan

Iran is on the brink of developing a network of nuclear power facilities. Regardless of what we may think about the dangers associated with nuclear power, and despite what Iran’s enemies might say, Iran, a sovereign country, has the right to develop nuclear power. It contends that its nuclear program will be purely for peaceful purposes.

According to published reports, Hamid Khadem Qaemi, a spokesman for the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran, says a $1 billion, 1,000-megawatt Bushehr plant will be operating at 40 percent capacity soon. Bushehr is located in southeast Iran on the Persian Gulf.

Iran assures the world that it is enriching uranium “only to lower levels, suitable for power plant fuel or medical and agricultural uses.” But Reuters claims that secretive nuclear enrichment operations are being moved to a “mountain bunker that would be safer from a possible American or Israeli military strike.”

In other words, the United States and Israel will work together. The United States usually supplies the money and war materiel for Israel to use in a strike in the name of “world peace.” However, in reality, Israel has been expanding the territorial scope of “greater Israel,” a land where native Palestinians (and potentially others) are being driven from their ancestral homes.

NOT IN OUR NATIONAL INTEREST

Let’s face it: America’s presence in the Middle East is not in our national interest and can lead to another war we do not need. Already, our continued occupations cost us many billions of dollars and tarnish our good name.

In Afghanistan, the slaughter has been raging for 12 years, and there is no victory in sight despite the claims made by the leaders of and advocates for the military-industrial-banking complex. Interestingly, very seldom is mention made of the lucrative Afghan poppy farms that advance the profits and power of the worldwide heroin drug cartel. Are Americans involved in the profitable heroin trade?

There is one organization, the Arms Control Association, which states its business is to serve as the authoritative source on arms control, specifically the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty of 1970.

There are 189 state-parties to the treaty, in two categories. One is nuclear-weapon states (NWS)—the United States, Russia, China, France and the United Kingdom. The other is supposedly non-nuclear-weapon states (NNWS). The five NWS members are committed to pursue general and complete disarmament, while the NNWS members have agreed to forgo developing or acquiring nuclear weapons. India, Israel and Pakistan are known to possess nuclear weapons but were allowed to join the treaty as NNWS members anyway.

The only country that has used atomic weapons is the United States. So here are Americans trying to tell others not to use them. Hypocrisy? ★

Kudos for 9-11 Anniversary Issue

Congratulations and well done on [AFP's Sept. 5, 10-year anniversary, "all 9-11" issue], and the coverage about the Sept. 11 attacks. I have to especially compliment AFP's Victor Thorn, who I understand compiled much of the information for that edition. This should be required reading for all members of Congress and even more so for former President George W. Bush and former Vice President Dick Cheney. I also have a suggestion: In each issue, whenever they become available, AFP should publish the latest figures on President Obama's "approval rating." As I write this they seem to be up and down.

HATS OFF TO JACKSON

"Jackson's Final Solution for the Bankers," by Ralph Forbes for AFP's Sept. 12 issue, is a masterpiece. The information had to have been originally drawn from an old-fashioned U.S. history book. The article explained how, after serving only six years in office, President Andrew Jackson eliminated a $58 million debt. Soon thereafter the U.S. government ran a surplus, creating a new problem. An important fact omitted in the article explains exactly what was done by those in the federal government to solve the problem of all that surplus money. What I had learned in an American history course from a college professor some 60 years ago provided the answer: "The money was divided equitably and returned to the states."

CHINA BEGINS U.S. LAND GRAB

Where is the outrage of American citizens whose forefathers bought America with their blood, when land and roads belonging to them are sold without their permission? Idaho, a state with many resources, recently sold 50 square miles of land to the Chinese. Imagine: 20,000 acres have gone to foreign nationals.

The Chinese were given hassle-free landing rights for their airplanes at Idaho's main airport. This is a threat to our security, especially since this airport is used by the Idaho National Guard. Mountain Home Air Force Base, with secret flight activity, is just a few miles away. The Chinese also are planning to acquire land in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania. You residents of these states should fight this land grab. Write your congressmen, senators and your governors. Make them take a stand against this outrageous land grab.

FREE TRADE

President Obama knows how to bring jobs back to America—but he just won't do it.

In Ohio, in 2008, while campaigning for the nomination, Obama said, "We need to renegotiate NAFTA." Of course, he was talking about the North American Free Trade Agreement. The crowd went wild.

That same day an official from the Canadian Embassy asked the Obama campaign headquarters about that statement. An Obama campaign official assured him: "No change. He was just campaign positioning." That's doublespeak for "lying."

Obama and all the other presidential aspirants know free trade is why the jobs left America, but they will not oppose it because free trade is the private cookie jar of the cabal of the unelected rulers of America.

PENTAGON PAPERS

These are truly troubling days for liberty. The Pentagon Papers, officially titled "Report of the Secretary of Defense Vietnam Task Force," were commissioned by then Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara in 1967. In June of 1971, small portions of the report were leaked to the press and widely distributed.

From what I read and witnessed in the U.S. Senate report of May 23, 1991 entitled "An Examination of U.S. Policy Towards POWs, MIAs During World War II, the Korean War and the Second Indochina War (Vietnam)," it appears that any soldier left behind in World War II, Korea and Vietnam was abandoned years ago.

In the fall of 1953 at the conclusion of Operation Big Switch, Gen. Van Fleet stated his belief that a large percentage of the 8,000 American soldiers listed as missing in Korea was still alive. Whether any of these men are alive today, after 56 years, is tragically unclear.

Americans and the new media which are not alarmed by this are either not paying close attention or are too trusting of government officials to be concerned.

I salute these brave men for their long suffering, which we regrettably have been unable to change. Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.

Juvenile Offenders Being Drugged Into Zombies by State

Florida is giving huge doses of anti-psychotics, many of them powerful tranquilizers, to juvenile offenders in order to reduce the costs of housing them, essentially turning these kids into zombies that receive food and sleep. These abused children are then released into society as adults, where they are unable to function and end up either receiving welfare and disability or committing crimes that have them reincarcerated.

It's all part of a trend in American prisons toward the sedation and chemical abuse of inmates in an effort to make them confess to a variety of crimes, often imaginary. Incapacitating meds are also used to reduce the effort needed to house prisoners by making them incapable of independent action.

According to a recent report in The Palm Beach Post, drugs such as Seroquel, Abilify and Risperdal are being given to youthful offenders twice as often as basic medicines like Ibuprofen, and they are being specifically dispensed to offenders not suffering from the mental disorders these drugs are designed to treat.

However, one noted side effect of giving anti-psychotic medications to individuals not suffering from psychosis is that they can have unpredictable and erratic reactions—often inducing psychosis or extreme emotional states. While these drugs tranquilize most individuals, a person's brain chemistry and structure is so unique that often the effects cannot be predicted, and a small percentage of individuals will always suffer a negative reaction.

This abuse of juvenile inmates mirrors trends in the federal system whereby drugs have paired with torture in federal efforts to force false confessions from adult inmates. During this writer's wrongful two-and-half-year imprisonment in the federal prison system, I was subjected to drug treatment in an effort to elicit a false confession regarding a supposed plot to assassinate President Barack Obama—a tactic that ultimately failed. In fact, much of the federal justice system is based on false confessions elicited from pretrial detainees who have been abused or tortured by federal authorities. Improved treatment is then promised if they admit to crimes that may never have occurred.

A factor in the abusive use of drugs on juvenile prisoners is the profits of Seroquel's manufacturer, AstraZeneca, which has encouraged prisons to use their anti-psychotic medications to chemically abuse those in their care. Some 36 states are currently involved in a lawsuit against AstraZeneca for encouraging prison officials to engage in the abusive use of psychoactive drugs against prisoners.

Prepare now for empty store shelves and Soviet-style food shortages...

New Socialist Policies Will Create Massive Food Shortages!

International bankers and power brokers have engineered the current crisis to create a new currency and a new "world bank" to act as savior. But we've only seen the beginning.

Their next engineered crisis will be on a scale never before seen in modern times. Shortages and empty shelves will spread fear and panic across the land.

The insiders have discovered that they must control two things to seize total power. Phase one is a one world currency... which we are currently being prepared to accept.

Phase two of their insidious plan is to take complete control of our food supplies. Please read the rest of this important message for the details.

If you have ever wanted to produce your own "cheaper than dirt" survival food this is going to be the most important message you will ever read.

Here is why:
A new video course is now available that reveals how to safely prepare and store survival foods in the event of a dangerous worldwide crisis. It's designed for anyone who is frustrated with surging grocery prices and the very real possibility of empty shelves in the coming year.

The success of the new videos has already encouraged hundreds of people who never thought they could preserve their own food to take action and finally start storing their emergency supply.

Massive Food Shortage Creates Worldwide Chaos!

The current credit crisis will have lasting and very profound effects. Banks are now refusing many farmers the credit they need to plant next years crops. Grocery stores that rely on credit to fill store shelves are being squeezed like never before. Some are near bankruptcy as I write this. Worldwide food supplies are also dwindling, creating a "perfect storm" for an international food disaster.

Already, several African nations have had citizens killed in food riots. There is talk that the government in Bangladesh could be toppled over soaring food prices. Food related tensions and unrest are breaking out in Central Asia, Southeast Asia and South America. Armed soldiers now stand watch over rice distribution in more and more countries. Just a few miles to the South, food riots have broken out in Mexico and Haiti. Estimates are that 33 nations are at risk of "conflict and social unrest because of food shortages."

That's a lot of suffering. And, American Free Press readers know all too well, suffering tends to bring out the ugly side in human nature. Right now, Americans just change channels when they see others starving on television. But it seems America could be next. The dollar is quickly losing value and the U.S. is more dependent on foreign food production than ever. Already grocery bills are rising faster than incomes. Wheat, corn, soybeans, bread, apples, beef, chicken, eggs and milk prices for these items are shooting up by double-digit percentages. Coupled with wildly fluctuating energy prices, more and more Americans are feeling the pinch, which now includes food shortages as we have recently learned about. Many experts think we could be approaching the greatest disaster in the country's history. Many Americans are starting to prepare.

How To Prepare For An Unthinkable Crisis

There is still time for you to prepare. But you have to start learning how to make your own survival foods as soon as humanly possible. And the best way to do it is to get the inside scoop on how to do it right. Fortunately, there is a way to get twenty years worth of food storage secrets crammed into two amazing DVDs.

This new food storage system is called "Food Storage Secrets." You do not need a lot of expensive equipment to store foods for a crisis using the methods taught here. Even better, "Food Storage Secrets" pays for itself quickly as you begin to put away garden produce or even meats that you buy on sale. For most folks, it's simply the biggest bargain of their lives. You can finally become self-sufficient and free from depending on others and any extra money saved in food expense goes right back to your pocket. Frankly, at the end of the day, "Food Storage Secrets" actually makes you money!

What's more, the videos take you by the hand, step by step, through the entire process of "putting away" almost any food you can think of. It's very much like having a food storage professional there with you every step of the way. In fact, it's so easy to follow along...

These Videos Make Creating Survival Foods Easy!

It's extremely easy to start storing food using these secrets. You'll understand immediately why actual users of the system are saying things like this:

"For the last four years my New Year's Resolution was to learn how to do my own canning in the event of an emergency. Finally after watching your videos, I'm putting up every kind of food you can think of."

Traci W. / Evanston, IN

"I bought a book at Barnes and Noble on canning. It had a lot of pictures but I have to admit it wasn't until I watched your videos that it seemed to all come together. We're even using your system to can wild game. Nothing gets wasted anymore. We're canning everything in sight! You're on my Christmas list for life!"

Stephen M. / Savanna, IL

"Growing up in a house where my mother canned food every year I thought I knew everything there was to know. I was astounded by the things I didn't know about and learned. I'm really happy with the videos."

Jennifer A. / Stanhope, NJ

Why You Need Affordable Survival Foods

One single strategic terrorist bombing can literally empty the grocery store shelves for months at a time. Will you be ready when the unthinkable happens? Sadly, most Americans will not be. Most will demand that the government "do something." But the truth is...

The Government Won't Help You In This Crisis!

Face it, when a crisis arises, you and your family will be on your own. And if you want to be able to help others, you will have to have a basement full of canned foods. Just imagine the peace of mind you'll have knowing your family will have enough to eat no matter what happens! And lastly, you will finally say good-bye to being a super market slave. Every time you go to your basement or pantry and grab a jar of the food, you are truly self-sufficient and finally off the establishment food grid.

Learn Food Storage Skills That Can Be Used Instantly!

You will never again worry about starving because of a terrorist attack, food shortage or even inflationary food prices. In fact, the goal of these videos is to teach families like yours the easiest, quickest and absolutely best self-sufficiency... food storage secrets available. No special skills required. No need to spend a lot of money to get started. Call it very cheap "starvation insurance".

Crash Course On Getting Off The Food Grid!

Here are some of the things you'll learn:

- How to make your canned foods taste five times better than grocery store food.
- What you absolutely must learn about vegetable acidity.
- Advice many "old time" canners give that is dead wrong.
- Why you should never buy produce for canning at a vegetable stand.
- Double batching techniques - so easy a child could do them.
- How to turn backyard produce into potent "canned medicines".
- 3 mistakes to avoid when boiling and cooking produce.
- How to be up and running overnight.
- How to store your canning equipment (make this mistake and you'll be sorry next year).
- How to "short cut" your learning course by half.
- Why a teaspoon of vinegar changes how your vegetables look, feel and even taste.
- How to use a single teaspoon of vinegar to make sure your food looks fresher than store bought.
- How to process and prepare almost any type of food.
- The single best investment you can make to become self-sufficient.
- How to create your own basement or pantry supermarket.
- Some crucial (and unusual) things you must do to protect against food poisoning.
- (It's easy to do once you know the secret).

Absolutely everything you need to know is on these food storage teaching DVDs. Someone once said that they are a kind of "all you need" private lesson on preparedness. And if there ever was a time to learn all you can on preparing for hard times, it's now. Here's more of what you will learn about food storage:

- Best ways to keep food fresh for a year at a time.
- How to make sure your kitchen is safe and ready before you start.
- When to say "no" to canning fruits and vegetables.

Socialist policies including wage and price controls will produce Soviet-style shortages in the U.S.

- What utensils you really need to get started (shortcuts that can save a fortune).
- What you "must do" if you want your canned foods to be mouth watering.
- How to get more vitamins, minerals and trace elements into your canned food.
- 4 important steps to insure your food is ready to be processed.
- The absolute best method to can tomatoes.
- One deadly mistake beginning canners make and how to avoid it.
- Canning times and pressure tables for 39 different meats.
- Canning times and pressure tables for 21 different fruits.
- Altitude charts you can't can without.
- How to become totally self-sufficient and completely off the grid by canning your own foods.
- How to save 300 hours or more per year in food preparation time.
- The truly only safe way to can meats.
- Teaching your grandchildren to store food.

Best of all, you'll learn how to turn each jar of prepared food into canned

"Super Food" by adding a very powerful ingredient that can change the way you think about storing food forever. You'll now produce your own "foods that heal" anytime you want, anywhere you want. It's easy once you know the secrets.

Well, that's pretty much all there is to it. These 2 video DVDs are a life saving "crash course" for anyone looking to start canning their own food. They come with a 100% iron clad lifetime replacement guarantee. If something ever happens to your DVDs get a new set for just a small shipping fee.
